You have been scheduled for an Upper GI/Small Bowel.

This is a two part exam. You will be asked to drink barium (a chalky liquid) while x-rays are being taken by the radiologist. Several more x-rays will be taken after you drink barium. For the second part of the exam you will drink additional barium. X-rays will be taken every 15-30 minutes until the barium reaches the large intestine. This exam could take 2 or more hours depending on how long it takes for the barium to move through your intestine.

Please follow the following instructions to prepare for the exam:

1. Do not eat or drink anything after midnight the night before the exam.
2. If you are diabetic, ask your physician about taking your diabetic medications.
3. This test may require a lot of walking. Please wear comfortable shoes.
4. You may want to bring something to read or do while you wait.
5. Women of child bearing age (12-55) should have this exam done only during the first 10 days following the first day of their period when it is certain there is no pregnancy. If the exam is done at any other time, then a pregnancy test is required (except for women who have had a tubal ligation or hysterectomy).
